Tidbits from around the town:

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Here are some of the goings-on around West Sacramento. The items come from a combination of sources including the city council's internal newsletter:

● Today from 10-11 a.m., River City High School will host a "Blues in the Schools" music performance. The project is a collaboration between the Sacramento Blues Society and YoloArts. Professional jazz musicians will play alongside student musicians. The Bill Graham Foundation is a sponsor.

● "Wicked 'Wich," a food truck operation that's part of a restaurant group that includes West Sacramento's popular "Broderick" restaurant, is now open for coffee and light breakfast and lunch options inside the community center at 1075 West Capitol Avenue.

The shop takes over the kiosk space formerly leased to La Bou. The kiosk has been empty for some time. On the menu are espresso, pastries, breakfast panninis and sandwiches. It's open weekdays 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

● "The Barn" has just been issued a building permit.

The freeform outdoor venue is city-subsidized and will go up at Garden Street near the riverfront and Tower Bridge. The facility is meant to help bring activity to the River Walk park area, by hosting outdoor events and a part-time beer garden.

Construction will begin shortly. The facility was initially intended to be open by last fall.

● City staff is negotiating with a couple of Southport neighborhoods about encroachment into public space.

Some residents of Bermuda Court were cited for blocking the pedestrian access between the court and Oakland Bay Drive and removing city landscaping. City staff is "taking a flexible position as long as the bicycle/pedestrian access is maintained," according to the city newsletter.

Meanwhile, staff has been talking to the gardeners whose plantings have overgrown the boundaries of the land they've been allowed by the city along the Main Drain Canal in Southport.

Trees, grapes, row crops and hardscape have been placed on an easement belonging to a local reclamation district. Representatives of "Friends of the Main Drain" have agreed to relocate some of the plant material while it is dormant, and remove other plants after harvest.

The group of neighbors began gardening "unofficially" on the public land along the main drain, but now operates with the city's blessing.

● Safeway/Albertson's intends to phase out its

Awareness is growing about the dangers of fossil fuels and pollution in our air and environment. Efforts to counteract and even reverse some of these harmful effects include promoting environmental sustainability and finding more efficient sources of energy.

The RCHS Greenhouse and Garden Club, advised by Jennifer McAllister, the Advanced Placement Environmental Science and Farm to Fork teacher, is working to not only bring awareness about sustainability to students, but to put the idea into practice.

The club has recently received a PG&E Bright Ideas Grant and with it they hope to expand the capacity for the campus to grow food.

The AP Environmental Science class has also recently launched an informational campaign

There's gold in those golden years

By Al Zagofsky
Correspondent

Dareld W. Binns, the new president of the Golden Years Club of West Sacramento, is enthusiastic to breathe new life into what he sees as an aging organization.

Started in 1987, now nearly 30 years old, the Golden Years is seeing itself as serving a new generation of seniors—a generation interested in meeting people, doing things, and going places. And so, he'd like to see pot luck dinners, and trips to places like Golden Gate Park in San Francisco, a seasonal Renaissance Faire, and a visit to his personal favorite, the Jelly Belly factory.

Dareld was born to an Iowa sharecropping family in 1948. "My dad farmed 2,000 acres," he said. "You name it, he grew it. We moved a lot. He went bankrupt three different times."

"I started driving a tractor when I was 10, and by the time I was 12, I was doing most of the cultivating. When I was 15, My dad took a job at the Maytag factory. That summer, I put up 65,000 bales of hay by myself."

"I went to school in the morning, and in the afternoon, I often would get on a bus to go to fields that we were farming. Depending on the season and the crop, I would cultivate, plant, plow, disk or mow until the tractor ran out of gas or it was too dark."

"I'd often fall asleep on the tractor, and my dad picked me up on his way home from work at 3 o'clock in the morning. I loved being on the farm. I loved being outdoors."

Dareld and eleven friends joined the Air Force in 1967; he was 17. He was stationed at Travis Air Force Base. "It was always windy and raining," he said. "I was a jet mechanic on transporters or bombers during the Vietnam War. I made Staff Sergeant in four years."

After receiving an associates degree in California Criminal Law from Sacramento City College, Dareld served as a Yolo County reserve officer, but left after 18 months when he felt that the department was asking him to be lenient on political supporters. "I don't play politics well," he explained. "My superiors told me who to treat nice—and not to treat nice."

Using the skills he had learned on the farm, Dareld developed a career in welding, mechanics and plant maintenance.

While working as head mechanic at a local company, the state mandated the company to replace its diesel motor-generators with an all electric system. Dareld was told to work on the replacement driver for the 300-HP motor for its multi-ton concrete crusher.

When the crusher shut down one morning, Dareld needed to checkout the three-step reduced voltage starter that fed up to 496 volts into the motor.

Taking a voltmeter, he wanted to check if power was flowing to the starter. Aware that voltage in could create an arc up to half an inch, he tried to be careful as he squeezed into the control box to check.

The last think that he remembered was that he was trying to stay two inches away from the terminals but... there was a flash—the voltage had jumped the gap into Dareld's hand, blowing him backward.

He was taken to Kaiser North Hospital. He had been electrocuted. The flash had entered his hand and exited through his foot—leaving a blackened inch and a half hole where it exited to the ground. He had a damaged shoulder and burnt lungs. He wasn't able to return to work, and lost his job.

So, he turned to his interests of photography and woodworking. He likes to take photographs of old barns and women's portraits.

Birdhouse built by Binns

Lately, Dareld has been making custom birdhouses. One of his latest reflects a redwood and pine Early American Plains style.

When his mother-in-law needed a ride to the Golden Years, Dareld also joined. When they needed a new president, he volunteered. Now he needs to set a new path for the Golden Years Club.

For information about the Golden Years Club, contact Dareld W. Binns 916-396-3617, or email: dwbphoto9op@yahoo.com.

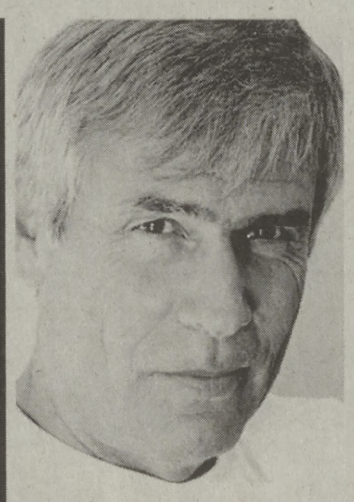
Why should you care about Ukraine?

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

The world is arguably a mess nowadays, with death and destruction seemingly plaguing just about every corner of the earth. Whether it's organized military action or every kind of terrorism imaginable, man's inhumanity to man seems to be on vivid display most everywhere one looks. And here in America, it's hard to properly rank what we should be most concerned about, our own inability to completely wrap up seemingly endless wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, or the terrorism that ISIS and other such despicable groups desperately want to spread to our shores. Or maybe it is the never-ending Israeli/Palestinian conflict that should worry us the most, or the fact that much of the continent of Africa is in utter chaos, or that Iran might get the nuclear bomb, or that Syria will never be stabilized, or that India and Pakistan could be back at each other's throats at any minute? Well, for my money, I worry most about what is going on in Ukraine.

Ukraine, long considered the breadbasket of that part of the world because of its extensive fertile farmlands which export much of the world's grain, basically finds itself bordered by Russia on the east and Europe on the west, while struggling to live in both worlds without being militarily pulled apart in the process. Although national polls have found that almost 90% of Ukrainians want to continue westernizing and further strengthen their ties with Europe (including majorities in the far eastern parts of the country believed to be mostly under Russian influence), Ukraine has already had the Crimea annexed by Russia and the fears of a widening conflict continue to increase.

As I write this, the warring government and rebel parties have announced a ceasefire, but the heavily armed Russian-sponsored rebels in the Donetsk and Luhansk regions, where most of the deadly fighting has been taking place, don't seem to be in much of a hurry to hold up their end of the bargain. Meanwhile, almost 6,000 Ukrainians have perished in the struggle and the fear that the war could spread to such heavily populated areas as Kiev, the ancient but now very modern capital of Ukraine, has its citizens concerned and frightened.

So, to help myself better understand what is really going on in Ukraine and why it is so important to those of us living in faraway America, I decided to ask someone who is actually living through the whole tragedy.

Svitlana was born in Kiev and although she has traveled extensively and lived in such places as Germany and Poland, she has always been drawn back to the city of her birth. She is well-educated and after working many years in the field of finance, has opened her own small business in downtown Kiev.

"I live in an old, beautiful part of Kiev," explained Svitlana, "and Ukraine is a wonderful place to call home. We are a good, patient, hard-working, strong-willed and creative people who just want to be allowed to prosper and live in peace with all of our neighbors. But our former president, Viktor Yanukovych, was so corrupt and such a puppet of Moscow that he was finally overthrown last year, and our new political leaders want closer ties to Europe, which of course goes against Putin's plan of keeping Ukraine closely allied with Russia, and that is why we now have this unwanted war on our soil."

It turns out that you can't really understand what is going on in Ukraine without understanding Vladimir Putin.

"Putin lives in fear of Ukraine becoming a part of the European Union and NATO," explained Svitlana. "He also cannot accept the fact that the old Soviet Union is no more, and he wants to return things to the way they once were under communism, with him totally in charge of course. He is a very ambitious man and he lives in a utopian world, where everything is just as he wants it. But Russia now lives off of its natural resources, especially oil and gas, and Ukraine wants a more modern economy, with all the individual freedoms and financial rewards that go with it. Anyway, if Putin's aggressiveness is not stopped in Ukraine, it will only spread, and it will end up engulfing much if not all of the Baltic States and Eastern Europe, and who knows what will happen from there."

'Putin lives in fear of Ukraine becoming a part of the European Union and NATO,' explained Svitlana. 'He also cannot accept the fact that the old Soviet Union is no more, and he wants to return things to the way they once were under communism, with him totally in charge of course.'

Without saying it, Svitlana was hinting at the possibility of a third world war, starting once again in Europe, and that in many ways, her beloved country is ground zero.

"Many regions of Russia are very poor, including many of its citizens," continued Svitlana, "and war is not a big deal to people with so little to lose. Putin has 40 or 50 thousand Russian soldiers on our borders right this minute, waiting for his orders. And the so-called rebels in our country could not exist without Russian advisers, soldiers and heavy weapons. So I know America and its European allies have many things to worry about other than Ukraine. But they better not turn their back on us, because Putin is very dedicated to getting what he wants, and there could be a terrible price to pay in the future for the whole world if he is allowed to do what he wishes in Ukraine. Anyway, all is quiet in Kiev for now, but we are no longer sure what to expect, and bombs could be falling here tomorrow for all we know. And I just hope the rest of the world won't forget about us."

Hargrove spells his way to a top ten finish

Jack Hargrove, an eighth grader at Bridgeway Island Elementary School, spelled his way to ninth place on Wednesday in the California Central Valley Spelling Bee.

He made his way past words such as "sushi" (his first word of the day), "sigil," "sumptuous" and "Appalachian" before falling to "omniligent," which means "having read everything.

"I was so happy when I got my first word because sushi is my favorite word!" he quipped. "And missing the last was a little odd because my parents joke about me having read so many books. But it was a really great experience."

The winner will go on to the Scripps National Spelling Bee in Washington, D.C.

Guest commentary:

Good habits for little mouths

By Yolo County Health Officer Constance Caldwell, M.D.

February is Children's Dental Health Month, which is a great time for parents to think about their children's oral health. Here is some dental-related information to chew on to ensure the health of your child's mouth now and into the future:

-- Tooth decay is the most common chronic infection in young children.

-- Even baby teeth are important. Children need them to eat and to talk clearly, and they are important space holders for permanent teeth.

-- You should begin brushing your baby's teeth as soon as their first tooth erupts, which is often at about 6 months. Even before their first tooth erupts, it is a good idea to gently clean their gums each day with a washcloth.

-- To protect young teeth, milk bottles should be discontinued as soon as a child can drink from a cup. Children should also never be allowed to sleep with a milk bottle as the milk will continually bathe their teeth and the sugar within, called lactose, will ultimately rot their teeth. This is the most common cause of early tooth decay.

-- Children should be assisted and supervised in tooth brushing for several years and their teeth should be brushed twice a day, every day.

which involves bringing awareness to a number of yellow food waste bins placed around the cafeteria and quad area of the school. The food waste collected is used in a process called Biodigestion, and it works by recycling the food waste and organic material to produce natural gas.

"The ultimate goal of the Biodigestion project is to close the loop for renewable resources. Farm to Fork to Fuel. We grow food in the Garden and feed it to the students of RCHS, the students then dispose of the food waste into the yellow Biodigestion collection cans," says Mrs. McAllister.

The food waste from the bins are collected by Atlas Disposal and taken to a Biodigestor in Sacramento to be converted into clean, natural gas to fuel vehicles. Any compost that is left over after the 21 day process can be used again to support fruits and vegetables in a garden, including the RCHS school garden.

"This school is working to become more efficient, one step at a time," says Deborah Bruns, a representative from the Yolo County Office of Education.

McAllister believes that if people live more sustainably by growing their own food, or buying local food, recycling, and choosing environmentally friendly ways of transportation, then pollution and environmental harm can be lessened in our community.

"We start by caring enough to ask questions, daring to commit to a change that is more environmentally friendly and celebrating that the Earth matters, our futures matter and the generations to come need to depend on us to protect our natural resources for them to have a healthy life worth living," says McAllister.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Centennial Rotary Club of West Sacramento supported the RCHS garden by providing $650 worth of lumber. The wood was delivered by members Walt James and Don Schatzel, to be used by the school's construction class to build planter boxes.

"Her son was trying to steal a cactus plant. Owner came out and chased off (the) son. When the son fled in fear, he dropped his bike and ran, and when he came back to get the bike, it was stolen where he left it."

The youth was out a $75 bike. And no cactus.

Joke of the week:

On a recent airline flight, an elderly passenger kept peering out the window.

Since it was totally dark, all she could see was the blinking wing-tip light.

Finally, she rang for the flight attendant.

"I'm sorry to bother you," she said, "but I think you should inform the pilot that his left-turn indicator is on and has been for some time."

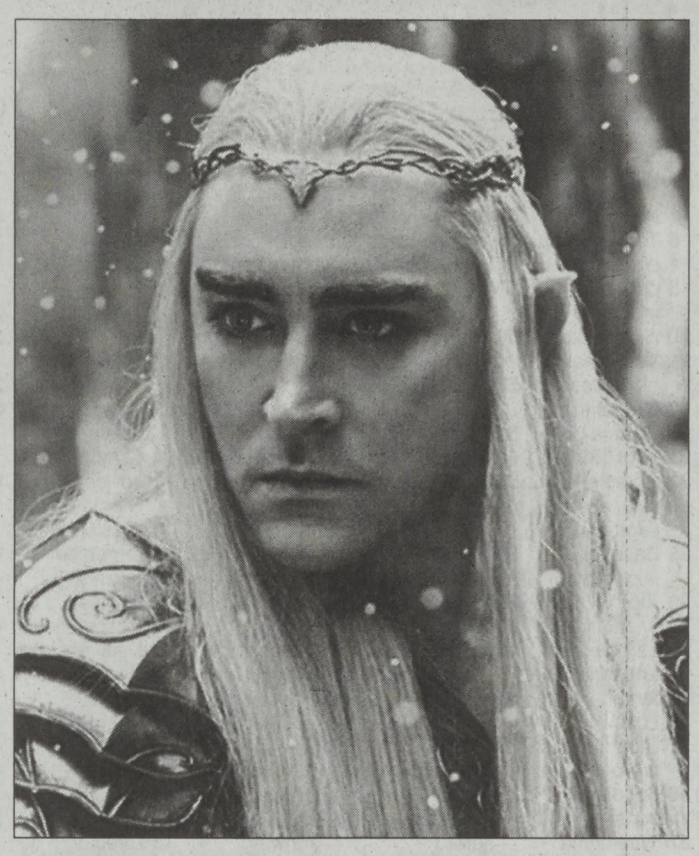
COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS

BY SAM STRUCKHOFF



Lee Pace in "The Hobbit: The Battle of the Five Armies"

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"The Hobbit: The Battle of the Five Armies" (PG-13) -- The final installment of Peter Jackson's epicly bloated epic reimagines the final few pages of a beloved old book into a two-and-a-half hour computer-generated monster mash. The big bad dragon, Smaug (voiced by Benedict Cumberbatch), scorches villagers and then gets slain, leaving his mountain of treasure up for grabs. More dangerous than a dragon is the impending battle between everyone who wants a chunk of the treasure -- including elves, dwarves, orcs and anything else that shows up. Bilbo Baggins is there, too, but you might miss him.

The satisfaction of the conclusion and climactic confrontation gets a little lost in Jackson's big-battle imagination. Much of the film relies on winks and nods to "The Lord of the Rings" and Jackson's own fan-additions to the story. If you've enjoyed the journey so far, then this third movie certainly will wrap it up for you.

"Into the Woods" (PG) -- This movie-adapted Broadway play stirs up the familiar fairy-tale formula by mixing them all together. A nasty witch (Meryl Streep) runs a scheme on a baker and his wife (James Corden and Emily Blunt), putting them on a quest for magical ingredients to cure their infertility. At the same time, Cinderella (Anna Kendrick), Red Riding Hood (Lilla Crawford), the Big Bad Wolf (Johnny Depp) and a host of others are set on their own intersecting journeys.

The songs are fun and the performances -- particulary Streep, Kendrick and Chris Pine as a superficially charming prince -- are enjoyable. The story throws people off, though. The second half is a great deal darker than the first. It makes the movie feel even more divided, as the threads holding it together were already pretty loose.

'Unbroken" (PG-13) -- Lou Zamperini already was a revered athlete when his plane was shot down over the Pacific. Zamperini (Jack O'Connell), who ran for America in the Berlin 1936 games, and two fellow airmen survived on a raft in the open ocean for 47 days before getting picked up by Japanese forces and placed in a camp run by a sadistic officer called "The Bird" (Takamasa Ishihara). It's a powerful story told capably by Angelina Jolie in her directorial debut.

"Song One" -- Anne Hathaway stars in this low-key romantic drama set to soft indie-rock music. She plays Franny, who leaves her studies abroad to visit Brooklyn, where her musician brother (Ben Rosenfield) lies in a coma after a car hit him. Franny starts tracking down her brother's contacts, hoping that she feel a connection to him and possibly help him recover with music. Along the way she falls hard for James (Johnny Flynn) -- the musician her brother looks up to.

The La Posada hotel in Santa Fe, New Mexico, was once a grand family home. Built in 1882 by Abraham Staab, a Jewish merchant, for his wife, Julia, and their children, it was one of the grandest private structures in the region. The first floor was a public area, the second, living quarters for the Staab family, and the top level a ballroom.

Julia's eighth pregnancy was a difficult one. The son born died a short time after birth. The death plunged Julia into a deep depression, and she spent what was left of life secluded in her bedroom. She died in 1896 at the age of 52. During the 1920s, the property passed out of the Staab family but continued to build its reputation as a resort and destination for travelers.

Fast-forward four decades. During the 1970s, a janitor was mopping the floor at the hotel late one night. When he looked up from his bucket, he gasped at the sight of a dark-eyed woman dressed in a long, black gown standing near the fireplace. As he blinked, the woman vanished. This visitation was followed by other mysterious events -- glasses that flew off the shelves of the bar, vases of flowers that moved to other locations and other sightings of the mysterious woman in black. The epicenter of the spooky events seemed to be in the second floor suite, once occupied by Julia.

Critically acclaimed author Hannah Nordhaus, the great-great-granddaughter of Abraham and Julia Staab, weaves together the strands of Julia's life in this true-life account, a stunning literary portrait of pioneer life in New Mexico involving ghosts, psychics, imagination and even an improbable love story.

Does Julia still haunt the wonderful old hotel? I urge you to read "American Ghost" and decide for yourself.

Funny Flower

It's strange, it's lovely, it's a thistle, it's a flower, it's the pale-green blossom of spring -- it's the artichoke. Artichokes are in season, so it's time to go to the market and get some thorny deliciousness for yourself.

Artichokes may be a food you think you know -- stripped down to its heart and frozen and packaged in a box, jar or can. But artichokes are delicious in all their forms. If you've never had the chance to buy them in their full, sculptural beauty, fresh off the plant, mature or young and tender, then you're truly missing something.

The artichoke is a member of the cardoon family, which is native to the Mediterranean. Cultivation began there as early as the 9th century. The artichoke likes mild, dry climates for growing, and in the United States it seems to prefer California's central valley almost exclusively. Being what it is, a leafy flower, makes it a great source of fiber. It's also high in vitamin C and magnesium.

If you live in California, you've probably had the chance to savor a fresh artichoke. However, it might seem a little exotic to the rest of us. The big round globe, with all its layers, might be a little intimidating. What to do with it? What is edible? What is not?

Use fresh artichokes within a few days of purchase. You may want to trim off the prickly points of the leaves before preparing them. Surprisingly, most of the flower is edible. The only exceptions are the more fibrous end of the stem (the upper part of the stem is very good) and the center. This part of the large, mature artichoke is inedible.

There are many tasty and attractive ways to prepare fresh artichokes. Large heads are delicious stuffed and roasted. Or artichokes can be steamed and the leaves removed and served for dipping into any sauce your imagination allows. Once the fuzzy center -- the "choke" of the artichoke -- is removed, the hollowed out core can be used as a serving dish for salads or soups. Small, young artichokes don't have to have the fibrous center choke removed, and can be cooked and eaten whole.

Try this wonderful recipe for Lemon Chicken With Artichokes and Olives. The simple combination of flavors showcases artichokes in a delicious way.

LEMON CHICKEN WITH ARTICHOKES AND OLIVES

1 large (4 pound) chicken, halved, backbone removed
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon unsalted butter
2 tablespoons poultry seasoning
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 cup low-sodium chicken broth
6 whole garlic cloves with skins on
5 large artichoke hearts, quartered, 3 1/2 pounds total (See "How to Prep Hearts" below)
2 tablespoons grated lemon peel
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 cup unpitted green olives
5 flat-leaf parsley sprigs

1. Preheat oven to 375 F. Heat oil and butter in large Dutch oven over medium-high heat. Sprinkle chicken all over with poultry seasoning, salt and pepper. Lay chicken in hot oil, skin-side down. Cook until browned, about 5 minutes. Turn chicken over. Pour the chicken broth around the outside edges of the chicken. Add the garlic, artichokes, lemon juice and lemon peel.

2. Roast chicken in oven, uncovered, until cooked through, about 1 hour or when temperature reaches 165 F on thermometer placed in thickest part of the thigh without touching bone. Remove the bird from the oven; let rest 10 minutes. (The thigh meat is forgiving, even if overcooked. In fact, it becomes more tender when cooked to at least 160 F.) Add olives and parsley and serve immediately. Serves 4 to 6.

How to Prep Artichoke Hearts: Snap off thick green outer leaves down to yellowish core. Halve artichokes crosswise; discard thorny tips. Trim stem to about 1/2 inch and peel tough outer skin from remaining stem. Halve artichoke lengthwise; scoop out and discard fuzzy, red-tipped choke. Put hearts in cold water with a little lemon juice and set aside until you're ready to cook.

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of JEROME CLARK FERRELL, JR..

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by SCOTT FERRELL in the Superior Court of California, County of YOLO.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that SCOTT FERRELL be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act . (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 04/07/15 at 9:00AM in Dept. 2 located at 725 COURT ST., WOODLAND, CA 95695

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call, 916-939-0772 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this Internet Web site, www.nationwideposting.com, for information regarding the sale of this property, using the file number assigned to this case, T.S.# 9411-7768. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. warehouse at 2935 Ramco Street by July 31, offering about 213 employees positions elsewhere, including Tracy. The move follows the merger of Safeway and Albertsons earlier this year.

● A developer has applied for a conditional use permit to build a four-story Springhill Suites Hotel (affiliated with Marriott) and a second unnamed hotel at 3425 Reed Avenue. The planning commission will take up the issue, possibly in June.

Meanwhile, a public hearing for a conditional use permit for a proposed Best Western at 3980 Lake Road is scheduled for March 19 in front of the city planning commission.

● The planned March 1 deployment of the docks at the Broderick Boat Ramp has been delayed. As earlier reported in the News-Ledger, thieves hit the ramp recently and stole recyclable metal including heavy cables, hardware and cut metal pieces. The docks may be open by the end of this month.

-- Dentists recommend that children have their first dental visit at about 1 year of age?
-- Children on MediCal have dental coverage through DentiCal. It is now easy to look up DentiCal dentists in your area on the Internet. Go to InsureKidsNow.gov and search with "Find a dentist".
-- Fluoride goes a long way toward preventing tooth decay, but if you live anywhere in Yolo County, except West Sacramento, your water supply regrettably is not fluoridated. Fortunately, fluoridated water can be purchased or your child's doctor or dentist can prescribe fluoride drops or pills. While there are many benefits to fluoridated water and supplements, it is not, however, a substitute for good oral health habits.

Habits for a lifetime of good oral health include:
-- Limiting sweets and making sure teeth get brushed after sweets
-- Choosing milk or water, rather than soda, with your child's meal (and yours too)
-- Removing the milk bottle before naptime and bedtime
-- Begin brushing when the first tooth appears and supervising brushing twice a day for the first few years
-- Finding and regularly visiting a dentist

During Children's Dental Health Month, and every month, do the above to keep your children's teeth healthy; it will go a long way toward keeping their smiles beautiful for the rest of their lives.
